Glossopteris Leaves

The Glossopteridales are an extinct group of seed ferns that arose during the Permian on the great southern continent of Gondwana. They were the dominant part of the Gondwana flora through the Permian, becoming extinct by the end of the Triassic. Glossopteris is the largest and best known of the Glossopteridales.

Personal Accident insurance is compulsory for all members attending field trips and other Fossil Club activities. The annual cost is $5.00 per member and must be paid before registering for the first field trip or activity. If you are a member of another lapidary, gem or mineral club affiliated with the Gem & Lapidary Council of Australia, and pay insurance to that club, you will already be covered. The Club insurer only covers those aged between 5 and 95 years of age – those aged under 5 or over 95 must arrange their own insurance at their own cost.
